

Welcome to campus

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN-MADISON

Greetings from Chancellor Mnookin

UW-MADISON QUICK FACTS

Founded: 1848

Campus size: 936 acres

Faculty and staff: 24,186

Living alumni: 459,324

n behalf of the entire campus community, I want to welcome you to the University of Wisconsin–Madison! We're so happy you're here.

You might already know that we are one of the strongest public universities in the U.S., with students from all 50 states and more than 120 countries around the world. You might even know that our faculty and alumni have won 20 Nobel prizes and 41 Pulitzer prizes, and our discoveries and innovations continue to change the world in areas ranging from immunotherapy cancer treatments to new techniques for exploring the galaxy to answer fundamental questions about the origins of the universe.

But there is so much more to learn about this fascinating place, and this guide will help you orient your visit around your interests.

As you explore our beautiful campus, I hope you'll develop some sense of the extraordinary range of research, teaching and service activities that happen here. Our students and faculty are creating new biofuels, developing wearable technologies that help people with disabilities move better, and expanding what we know about how social media influence civic life. They are finding new ways to address racial disparities in healthcare and exploring a multitude of experiences and cultures through dance, film, printmaking, hip hop, and more.

There is so much happening here that it might feel a bit overwhelming. While you are visiting, consider taking some time to stroll through our beautiful Allen Centennial Garden, explore the Chazen Museum of Art, or watch the sunset at Memorial Union Terrace as UW students and alumni have done for five generations. You might also want to stop at the Babcock Dairy Store for a scoop of delicious ice cream.

Thank you for visiting, and I hope you have a wonderful time while you are here with us.

On. Wisconsin!

Jennifer I. Mnookin

Our Shared Future

Our Shared Future is a campus-wide commitment to teaching and learning about the special place where UW-Madison is located, the lands, waters, ecosystems, and peoples of the extraordinary cultural center of Teejop ('Four Lakes' in Hoocak language). UW-Madison describes itself as being the most archaeologically rich campus in the United States as Teejop, or Madison, WI, has at least 12,000-years of extensive human development. In addition to educating about this exceptional place, Our Shared Future also informs about UW-Madison's historic and contemporary relationships with Ho-Chunk people and today's Ho-Chunk Nation.

To help establish fundamental understandings of this place and the evolving relationship between the university and the Ho-Chunk, on June 18, 2019, leaders of UW-Madison and the Ho-Chunk Nation dedicated a new heritage marker on Bascom Hill. At the dedication, Chancellor Rebecca Blank shared, "No plaque or monument can ever adequately convey a difficult and complicated history," she said. "But it can start a conversation that moves us from ignorance to awareness. So today is the beginning of an intentional effort to teach our shared history."

The Our Shared Future heritage marker reads: The University of Wisconsin–Madison occupies ancestral Ho-Chunk land, a place their nation has called Teejop since time immemorial. In an 1832 treaty, the Ho-Chunk were forced to cede this territory. Decades of ethnic cleansing followed when both the federal and state government repeatedly, but unsuccessfully, sought to forcibly remove the Ho-Chunk from Wisconsin. This history of colonization informs our shared future of collaboration and innovation. Today, UW–Madison respects the inherent sovereignty of the Ho-Chunk Nation, along with the eleven other First Nations of Wisconsin.

Most importantly, Our Shared Future

LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

NATIVE AMERICAN EFFIGY MOUNDS

UW-Madison may be one of the most archeologically rich universities in the United States. Experience more than 12,000 years of human history by visiting ancient earthworks at Observatory Hill, Willow Creek, Picnic Point, Eagle Heights, and the Arboretum that were constructed more than 1,000 years ago.

is a process, or in the words of Ho-Chunk President Wilfred Cleveland, "a spark for the university community to learn about the Ho-Chunk people and the sacredness we hold for this land." As such, Our Shared Future is not a land acknowledgement or something to recite. It is a first step that calls on each of us faculty, staff, and students—to deeply consider our shared past and present with Indigenous peoples in this place, Teejop, and to make our own personal and institutional commitments to achieve a shared future with them.

OUR SHARED FUTURE HERITAGE MARKER

In October of 2021, the marker was installed in its permanent location near South Hall on Bascom Hill. The marker recognizes the land as the ancestral home of the Ho-Chunk.

DEJOPE RESIDENCE

HALL is located on the shore of Lake Mendota. The hall features indigenous artwork, replica mounds, and an outdoor fire circle that displays the official seals of eleven of the twelve First Nations of Wisconsin. The University received approval from each nation to display their seals.
